

Blis Media Limited
Privacy and Cookies Policy

Blis Media Limited (“we”, “our” or “us”) is committed to protecting and respecting your privacy.

This policy sets out the basis on which we process any personal data that we receive as part of the provision of our services, that we collect from you, or that you provide to us.

Blis Media Limited is registered under the Data Protection Act 1998 (“the Act”) under number ZA113120.

Please read this policy carefully to understand how we will treat personal data. By providing personal data to us, you are accepting and consenting to the practices described in this policy.

1. Use of data we receive from third parties for programmatic advertising purposes

We provide services to media agencies and their clients, global advertisers, purchasing media by using our technology platform and real-time bidding algorithms for the programmatic purchase of digital inventory across various Sell-Side Platforms (SSPs).

We use the data which we receive from SSPs or (occasionally) from internet service providers (ISPs) that Blis has a non-exclusive data partnership with, or which we collect ourselves in the course of the provision of our services, to deliver targeted location-based advertising for our advertising clients.

The overall result is that the consumer receives advertising which is more specifically tailored to his or her interests, and the advertiser reaches an audience which is most interested in its products or services. Accurate targeted advertising is, therefore, a win-win situation for advertiser and consumer.

We handle various data in the provision of our services, including the following data:

- Information relating to consumers which we receive from SSPs or publishers, which may include (depending upon the privacy settings of the device) the device ID of the mobile device being used to access an App (which is a random string of letters and numbers which is generated by the software of the device and which does not include any personal details of the user of the device), location data, the name of the App in use and the category of the App (e.g. news, entertainment, shopping). Blis does not receive device ID’s from web browsers – device ID’s are received in respect of App traffic only.
- Information relating to a particular device ID, including historic location data, ads clicked on, frequency of exposure to ads served and apps used.
- (In a small percentage of cases) information which we receive from ISPs, which includes anonymised age and gender data of users of the ISP’s wireless network. We only receive this information where the user has accepted the ISP’s privacy policy and opted in to the data being provided to us and used for targeted demographic and location-based advertising.
- On a website, data regarding the general nature of the content being viewed.

Our algorithm determines which ad to serve to a particular device based on multiple factors including the real time location of the user, whether we have a history of location data for the same device ID and the ads previously served to that device ID.

Whilst we do not receive or collect information which directly identifies individuals (such as names, addresses, email addresses) some of the data which we process (such as device ID numbers coupled with location data) could be considered as “personal data” for the purposes of data protection legislation. It is, therefore, our policy to treat the data which we process in the provision of our services as “personal data” in accordance with the requirements of the Act.

As we do not have a relationship with the consumers whose data we process, we rely on our partners to ensure that the data that is passed to us has been lawfully obtained, that the consumers have been given notice as to how their personal data will be processed and that it may be passed to intermediaries such as Blis Media for the purposes of targeted location-based advertising and that the consumer has consented to such processing.
